SCIENTIFIC MISCELLANY.

—Abernethy used to say that "of the large quantity of food a man swallows, one-fourth supports him, and the rest he keeps at his risk."

—A method of improving India rubber and gutta percha by the addition of a distilate of birch bark has lately been brought out. Distillation of the outer layers of the bark produces a dense, black, gummy matter resembling gutta percha and capable of resisting the action of air and of the strongest corrosive acids. It is claimed that the durability of India rubber or gutta percha is greatly increased by the addition of a small quantity—a twentieth part is sufficient—of the birch bark gum.

—M. Decourneau attributes the cracks in common mortars and cements to the uncombined quicklime which they contain. In order to neutralize the lime, he uses a very fine siliceous powder mixed with diluted nitric acid. He thus obtains mortars of much greater, more uniform and more lasting resistance than those hitherto used. The application of this method has given excellent results. Stone made by the process may be worked like the natural product.

—M. Gley, a French physiologist, has been investigating the effects of brain work on the circulation of the blood. In his experiments he has found that when he applied himself to a difficult subject, upon which he had to concentrate all his energies, the rythm of the heart was far more accelerated than when considering some matter with which he was familiar.

—A peculiar phenomenon occurred in August on a mountain of Rhenish Prussia. In the side of the Brennende Berg a pit of about a hundred square yards in area suddenly opened, emitting a great volume of flame and engulfing a house and its inmates. It is believed that the cause of the catastrophe was the ignition of gas rising from a petroleum vein in the depths of the mountain.

—Paper belting is now being used in Japan, and is said to have been found stronger than leather belting.

—Sir John Lubbock estimates that 2,000,000 animal species have existed on our globe, of which only about 25,000 are as yet on record. He places the number of recent species at 700,000.

—Experiments to determine the changes of color produced in flowers by ammonia have given these results Over a dish of ammonia was inverted a funnel, in the tube of which were placed the flowers experimented upon Blue, violet and purple flowers were found to change to a beautiful green; deep red flowers to black, and white to yellow. These changes are most striking when the flowers have several different tints, in which the red lines are turned dark, the white yellow, etc. If the flowers thus changed are placed in pure water they retain their color for several hours, gradually resuming their original tints after that time. Another observation made in this connection is that the flowers of the aster, which are naturally inodorous, acquires a very agreeable perfume under the influence of ammonia.

—The sense of touch in eyeless fishes is shown by experiments to be extraordinarily developed.

—A paper by Dr. D. W. Prentiss calls attention to two cases in which the introduction of pilocarpin—the active principles of the powerful Brazilian drug, jaborandi—into the human system has caused a very marked change in the color of the hair. In the first case the pilocarpin was administered at intervals during a period of ten weeks with the object of "sweating" the patient. In a few days after the first application the patient's hair, originally very light, was observed to be growing darker, and in six months it had become almost pure black. In the second case the hair had become perceptibly darker in a week after the treatment with pilocarpin was commenced. The patient in the first case was a young lady of twenty-five, and the other was an infant. The introduction of jaborandi into medicine is of so recent a date that little opportunity has been afforded for studying its varied action on the system, but there appears reason to believe that the color of the hair is due to an oily pigment, which is increased under the influence of the drug.

—During last winter the experiments of Mr. C. W. Siemens on the action of electric light on vegetation—with results which he has just described to the British Science Association—were continued. He noticed the curious fact that plants exposed to the direct rays of the electric arc soon became sickly and withered, while in the light of the arc enclosed in a glass globe the vegetation flourished to as remarkable extent as in his previous experiments The unfavorable action of the open arc is supposed to arise from certain non-luminous rays which are intercepted by the glass. The botanist has here a subject for study.

Upon high Celestial authority there is at present habiting the Mokelumne river, a few miles from Amador, Cal., a water monster that has spread consternation among the Chinese population. They assert that a number of them were on the river just below the old Boston mill site, when they saw what they supposed to be a large fish near the top of the water, and one of the party made a leap into the river to capture the prize. But no sooner had he struck the water than the monster turned upon its would-be captor and instantly drew him under, from whence he did not arise. The monster is said to have teeth like a dog, and the man was as nothing in its grasp. The Chinamen who witnessed the tragical fate of their countryman concluded that the thing was the devil, and fled for their lives. It is also claimed that another Chinaman lost his life in about the same manner near this place several years ago, and it is thought this is the same monster returned.

Customer · "I don't know how it is, but my clothes never fit me nicely. Now you always make my friend, Capt. Stollert's coats to sit beautifully!" "Yes, sir, but he's got shoulders to hang 'em on! If a gentleman's made like a champaigne bottle no tailor can fit him!" Exit customer in dudgeon.

NEW YORK LETTER.

NEW YORK, Oct. 1, 1881.

EDITOR GAZETTE:—The Garfield trust fund is steadily on the increase, and the handsome sum of $333,000 has already been raised. A number of wealthy gentlemen have refused to subscribe, because they consider the present amount amply sufficient, and they contend that if people have any more money to give away, that it should be given to the sufferers by the western forest fires, who are sadly destitute, and whose losses $2,500,000 would not replace.

Another old and trusted bank employee has been found to be short in his account. For thirty-five years Geo. W. Hunt has been connected with the Importers' and Traders' bank, and for over a quarter of a century he was its paying teller. He had been looked upon as a model clerk, modest in his mode of living, diligent in attending to his duties, and scrupulously exact in his accounts, and the revelation of his peculations which amount to $16,000, staggered the directors, whose entire confidence he had enjoyed for so many years. Some idea of the feeling they had for Mr. Hunt may be gathered from the fact that only last summer, they offered to retire him on his full salary of $2,500 a year. But he could not accept this generous offer, for he was then $14,000 short in his accounts. The paying teller's troubles are the result of trying to shield a bad boy from merited punishment. A little over a year ago, incendiary fires were very numerous in the village of Greenwich, Conn., where Mr Hunt resides. An investigation was made and the result was the arrest of Mr. Hunt's son for arson. That son's criminal propensities drove the father to the commission of an act which will disgrace him forever more.

President Arthur is in town on private business connected with his law firm, which will be dissolved, and he is arranging to remove his family to Washington. But this does not deter the politicians from besieging his house. But few are admitted, however. Only the big guns of Republicanism being able to reach the Presidential ear, and it is safe to say that they are making the most of their opportunities. And speaking of the President reminds one of an alleged plot to murder his friend Roscoe Conkling, which has been disclosed to the police. The plotter is a person residing in Utica, where he has done business for fifteen years or more. The police's informant is a Mr. Jackson, a well known shipping merchant of this city, to whom the Utica man addressed a letter which was received last Wednesday The text of the letter was withheld from the reporters, but enough was divulged to show that Mr Jackson's correspondent had indulged in some very intemperate language to say the least. In three pages and a half of note paper he argued that Conkling deserved death and ought to be shot, that patriotic citizens should organize to do it, and that the sentiment of the country would uphold them in doing it. The writer conveyed the futher information that he was coming to New York on the occasion of the State Convention, and that Mr. Conkling should not be admitted, let the consequences be what they might. The police do not think the matter very serious, and look upon the letter as the vaporings of a hot-headed, indiscreet partisan, who may have been spirituously stimulated when he committed his wild argument to paper.

For weeks there has been the hottest kind of a fight between the railway magnates for the control of the principal railway properties Vanderbilt, who until recently has been playing second fiddle to Jay Gould, a role which made him appear to the public as being afraid of him, has got his spirit up, and is going for the great speculator with a vengeance. Thus far this season he has headed him off at all points, and seriously depressed the value of the securities in which Gould is principally invested. But Jay is plucky and determined, and though he must have lost several millions through Vanderbilt's manoeuverings, he still stands firm and defiant.

Gen. Grant's new mansion in this city is being furnished in a princely manner for the reception of the family. The General's family were never so prosperous. His Mexican railway interests are profitable, while his speculations in Wall street are adding to his fortune every day. His boys too are making money and living like nabobs, and it is rumored that General Grant's daughter and her husband will remove from England to this city to enjoy the family prosperity. Verily, it is better to be born lucky than rich.

LAURENS.

A case of interest to school teachers, which has been pending in Gentry county, Illinois, for two years, has just been decided. The directors of a school district employed a teacher at a salary of $40 per month for a term of six months, and at the expiration of two months discharged him for some alleged misconduct. He brought suit to recover his money, or $160 for the four months he did not teach. The court decided that he was entitled to it, on the grounds that directors can only employ teachers and not discharge them, except when charges are preferred and they are tried and convicted; and this was not done in the case referred to.

When President Garfield's mother was a young girl she taught in a little Ohio country school held in a primitive building standing near a heavily timbered wood. One day a fearful storm came up, the school house was struck by lightning, and teacher and pupils were all thrown to the floor by the shock. The teacher recovered first, and one by oneher little pupils rose—all but one child, whose reason had departed forever.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

When a bank is robbed and there is no clue to the robbers detectives are employed, with the double purpose of recovering the stolen property and of bringing the criminals to punishment. The detectives, if successful, are both rewarded and applauded. If a murder is committed, though the dead may not be restored to life, again detectives are set to work to discover the murderer, that he may have "justice" meted out to him and that the law against murder may be vindicated. In neither of these cases, except it may be on the part of the criminals themselves, is there any complaint heard against the employment of detectives to aid in the execution of law. In the enforcement of law against liquor selling, if detectives are employed to obtain requisite evidence, there is a great outcry raised against them in certain quarters, and they are denounced as "spies" and "informers."

This warfare against liquor detectives is just now especially active and violent in Kansas. The constitution of the State has been amended, and a stringent law in accordance therewith has been enacted to prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors for drinking purposes. Now comes the "tug of war" to secure a proper enforcement. It is, of course, the interest as it is the inclination of the liquor party and of the brewers, the distillers, and liquor sellers elsewhere than in Kansas to proclaim and to ensure the "failure" of the amendment and the law. To that end in some localities Kansas liquor sellers are encouraged to defy the law, and all possible obstacles are interposed to prevent its execution. Officials timidly or corruptly refuse to do their duty, jurors and witnesses, it is said, do not scruple to perjure themselves, and convictions in the courts are most difficult to obtain, even in cases of most shameless and flagrant violation of the law. And when fearless and public spirited citizens, determined to exorcise the iniquitous drink traffic, have addressed themselves to the task of securing evidence which could be made available in the courts against the liquor criminals they have not only been denounced therefor, but, in some instances, have been brutally assaulted and their lives imperilled.

Is there any good reason which can be given against the employment of detectives in the execution of a prohibitory liquor law? We have seen none. In the license States, as in New York, detectives can be employed to expose and punish illegal liquor selling only. But that is so offensive here as are the kindred efforts to enforce entire prohibition in Kansas—so offensive that the late Legislature at Albany was appealed to—thanks to the Governor, unsuccessfully—to make effective interference with liquor selling by detectives well nigh impossible. If men may mingle with thieves to acquaint themselves with their schemes and prevent and expose their crimes, may they not render kindred service to expose, punish, and prevent the crime of liquor selling? Bank robbery is bad, and ought to be punished and prevented as far as possible; but infinitely more harm comes to the community through liquor selling in a single year than from all the bank robberies of a century combined. What is the occasional loss of bank notes, stocks, or bonds compared with the continuous ruin, body and soul, wrought by the the liquor seller upon numberless victims?

Upon this greatest of crimes the State of Kansas has stamped the seal of its condemnation in the letter of its constitution and upon its statute book. The liquor party are making desperate efforts to perpetuate the crime. Great responsibility rests now upon all good citizens of the State, its Christian men and women especially, to see to it that the hands of faithful officials are upheld and strengthened, that the timid ones are duly encouraged and supported, and that those who may prove to be incompetent or corrupt are promptly removed. The unscrupulous perjury among witnesses and jurors, wherever it may develop, should be sternly rebuked and frowned upon; what the constitution and the statute define as a crime should be treated in good faith as such. If the bank robber detective is worthy of reward and applause, much more so is he who, in the endeavor to suppress illegal liquor selling, renders effective service for the exposure and punishment of the chief of criminals.

The greatest difficulty perhaps in the way of the execution of prohibitory liquor legislation is the lack of conviction on the part of many good people, who deplore the results of intemperance, that liquor selling really is criminal in itself. It is to this weak point that the friends of temperance should especially address themselves. Until, in its educational aspect, the temperance movement can do its work with sufficient thoroughness to cause all good citizens to feel that the liquor traffic is really and inherently criminal for beverage use, liquor detectives will be regarded with distrust by many besides the liquor seller, and the proper enforcement of stringent restrictive and prohibitory liquor laws will languish and fail. To this end, invoking the aid of literature, the platform, and the pulpit, the watchword must be, Educate, educate, educate.—Nat. Temp. Advocate.

BRAIN-WORK, ALCOHOL, AND TOBACCO.—James Parton concludes a recent article upon the habits and death of Bayard Taylor, whom he had, as a personal friend, warned against the danger of wine and beer drinking and smoking, as follows "Mental labor is not hostile to health and life. But I am more than ever convinced that a man who lives by his brain is of all men bound to avoid stimulating his brain. Even the most moderate use of the mildest wine is not without danger, because the peculiar exhaustion caused by severe mental labor is a constant and urgent temptation to increase the quantity and strength of the potation. I would say to every young man in the United States, if I could reach him; If you mean to attain one of the prizes of your profession and live a cheerful life to the age of eighty, throw away your dirty old pipe, put your cigars in the stove, never buy any more, become an absolute teetotaler, take your dinner in the middle of the day, and rest one day in seven."

When James Boswell took Dr. Johnson to his father's house in Scotland, Lord Auchinleck remarked that James had brought an odd kind of a chiel wi' him. "Sir," said Boswell, "he is the grand luminary of our hemisphere—quite a constellation, sir." "Ursa Major, the Great Bear, I suppose," said the old judge.

THE PATHETIC PRESIDENCY.

BY REV. THEODORE L. CUYLER.

The coincidences between the careers of Lincoln and of General Garfield are most striking in many other points beside their tragical end by the hand of an assassin. They were both children of poverty, both struggled through their early education against sore difficulties; both were representatives of the Western type of character, and tasted of the soil; both were vehement advocates of Liberty both had an originality of thought and expression which gave them a rare and peculiar eloquence; both were chosen to the Presidency without any scheming of their own, both issued inaugural messages which won the admiration of the world; and both had such pathetic experiences in the White House, that the story of their presidential lives will always touch the fount of tears. Lincoln went into the White House under the impending cloud of civil war, and in spite of his attempts to cheer his sadness by his frequent strokes of humor, he had four years of perpetual anxiety and suffering. Those great, deep, melancholy eyes seldom knew much quiet, unbroken sleep.

General Garfield entered upon his high office in the bright sunshine of health, popularity, and the fullest foretokens of brilliant success. He seemed at the summit of human happiness. When on his inauguration-day he kissed the dear old mother who had rocked his cradle in a log-cabin in Ohio, he must have felt that the shadowed dawn of early hardships and poverty had given place to a high noon of blazing prosperity and honor. But in a few weeks came sorrows—not of his own making. The faithful wife who had struggled up with him bravely through a life of toil, and who had borne her elevation so meekly, was stricken down with dangerous sickness. All the lustre of high office paled under a grief that touched him to the quick.

At the very time when he was suffering from this sharp domestic trial he was daily beset by hordes of hungry office-seekers clamoring for the "spoils." Worse yet than this, a violent attempt was made to wrest from him his sacred right to appoint to important public trusts such persons as his own conscientious judgment should select. It was an attempt to degrade his office and to enslave him. A warfare began which soon heated the atmosphere of Washington by the most flagrant imputations of dishonor and untruthfulness, they of his own political household "lifted up the heel against him," and dealt him the most insulting blows. Even in this hour of grief there are some of us who feel our blood boil when we remember the treatment our beloved President received from the hands of his assailants. It is to the credit of the Empire State that the men who led this cruel crusade against the Chief Magistrate have been remanded to the shades of private life. But no reparation can ever be made for the sufferings they caused to that kind and noble heart that has ceased to beat. It is not from the spirit of revenge, but from righteous indignation that we recall that painful episode in our dead President's brief administration; it has its salutary lessons for the living—and its warnings too.

After this warfare had somewhat spent its violence, and the sick wife had nearly recovered, came that hideous crime that filled the world with horror. For nine long, weary weeks the White House was the centre of the world's sympathy. Every day was a day of distress, and every night a night of sleepless anxiety. The sublime fortitude of the heroic Christian sufferer illumined the cloud, but did not remove it. The cloud deepened until the White House is now a deserted spot, shrouded in the drapery of woe. All this within six months! The Presidential mansion empty, and its honored mistress who entered it with such high hopes wishing "never to see it again!" Verily, what sorrow is like unto such sorrow? What story of our time is so inexpressibly pathetic as the story of Garfield's brief, brave, noble, and yet grief-stricken Presidency? It would seem as if there were enough in all this to cool the heats of men's ambitions, and to convince them that the most exalted stations may be the scenes of the acutest sufferings. Sorrow, as well as death, often seeks a "shining mark."

Are there no compensations for all the sufferings that the last few months have witnessed? Yes, let us thank God that there are many. At a bitter price our nation has learned lessons that cannot soon be forgotten. Political animosities have been so silenced that the voice of a Democrat towards our departed President is as tender as the voice of a life-long Republican. Southern hands grasp Northern around that bier in the Capitol. The whole humam race has felt a new kindship of sympathy. Before the entire world an example of calm Christian fortitude has been displayed that will bring inexpressible blessings to millions of tried and suffering souls. Who can tell what spiritual showers of mercy may descend from this dark cloud of affliction? "Men see not the bright light that is in the clouds, but the wind passeth and cleareth them." And so it may come about that the longest and most prosperous administration this country ever knew may not yield such "fruits of righteousness" as the short and pathetic Presidency that has just come to its untimely end.—New York Evangelist.

A traveling dentist in Australia advertises a new method of extracting teeth, "without the aid of chloroform or laughing gas." When a patient calls upon him for treatment, he places him in a chair and makes a fixture of him with straps and bands. Then he puts the forceps to the bad tooth and gives it a terrific jerk inward. "That," he says, "is the way that Dr. Smith does it." He gives it a yank in the opposite direction, remarking, "And that is the way that Dr. Jones goes to work." By this time the tooth is quite loose, and with a gentle pull he forces it out, saying, "But this is the way that I do. Send your friends to me, and I'll convince them of the superiority of my method."

A little girl has an uncle who has taught her to open and shut his crush hat. The other evening, however, he appeared with an ordinary silk one. Suddenly he saw the child coming, with his new silk hat wrinkled like an accordeon. "Oh, uncle," she said, "this one is very hard! I've had to sit on it; but I can't get it more than half shut."

In most quarrels there is a fault on both sides. A quarrel may be compared to a spark, which cannot be produced without a flint as well as steel.

HOW LADY MACDONALD JOINED THE TEETOTALERS.

The English Messenger of Peace gives the following extract from a letter written by Lady Macdonald, the wife of the Canadian Premier, to a friend in Savannah, Ga.: "I was myself led to give up wine drinking after some reflection, suddenly, at last on Christmas Day, 1866. I had thought a good deal on the subject, but never made any decided resolution until this day, when, at dinner with a large party, the conversation turned on total abstinence. One of our guests, himself a strictly temperate man holding high office in our county (then and now), said that practically total abstinence was impossible for any one society. I said, laughingly, 'What a dreadful statement! I quite differ from you.' He took me up warmly, and several joined in, all without exception agreeing with him in saying that the requirements of modern society were such that no one could be so singular as to become a teetotaler without being more or less ridiculous, and that the fatigues, excitement and wear and tear of political society life especially made the use of wine, in great moderation of course, absolutely a necessity. I entered the lists, I scarcely know why, and declared I did not believe this theory.

"At last the question was pressed more closely. My friend, who had begun it, said that he did not believe 'You, yourself, Lady Macdonald, could or would give up your glass of sherry at dinner.' I asked, Why not? and he went over with great force and clearness all the specious and dangerous arguments that are urged in support of drinking wine in moderation, ending with the remark that in Sir John's public position my being a total abstainer would do him great harm politically. This seemed too monstrous, so I said (emptying my half glass of sherry into the finger glass as I so), 'Well, I will try; henceforward I enter the ranks of total abstainers, and drink to our success in water.'

"Since then, thank God, I have never found any necessity for wine. In health I can do my life's work without any aid from dangerous stimulants; in sickness I have invariably and positively refused to touch it. I have sometimes, for weeks together, days of constant occupation, nights of almost all sitting up. Politics are exciting and fatiguing, and every temptation to try stimulants is to be found in the late nights of listening to anxious debates, and the constant necessity of being up to the mark late and early. I have had a great deal of nursing to do with a delicate husband and child, and this often during our busiest society season; and yet I have never sought strength from wine at any single moment, and my health is far better than that of so many of my friends who take a glass of wine, or a little beer, just to give them a little strength.

"Thus I give you my experience, as far as it goes, to show that stimulant is not necessary in the station of life where it is unfortunately most commonly used. So far as mental and bodily fatigue go, I have tested the possibility of doing without stimulants to the fullest extent, in long anxious hours over sick beds, in sudden disaster, in long watchings and journeys where food was uninviting, and in many fatiguing and very uncongenial society claims. When I told my husband my decision, and that our friend said that it would hurt his prospects, politically, Sir John answered with a laugh, 'O, I will risk the prospects; you can be a total abstainer if you like.' My example can and ought to help many similarly situated."

JOHN MUIR AS AN ECCENTRIC STUDENT.

Twenty years ago there were but few students at the University of Wisconsin. But among those few students were many who have since made a name in their various lines of work. Among them came a queer genius, now John Muir, the naturalist. Where he came from I do not now know. He was of Scotch parentage, studious, industrious, inclined to have but few companions, yet social, was a lover of quiet fun and long rambles in the country, and, like many others who had their way to make, cooked his frugal meals in his room. In all these things, he was not singular; his remarkable trait was his love of practical mechanics and invention.

He seemed to need few tools; an axe, saw, jack-knife and gimlet were his chief weapons, while almost anything served as material. His clock served as a centre about which several of his most interesting machines clustered. This was in the form of a scythe and snath, hung in an old, gnarled burr-oak grub, where Father Time is supposed to have left it. The scythe was split lengthwise, and in the opening thus formed was a train of wheels constituting the works. The motor was a heavy stone, concealed under the roots and moss, from which the clock rose on the table. The year, month, day, hour, minute and second were indicated by index arrows on the various paper dials. The pendulum was also an arrow with a heavy copper point.

His study-desk was provided with a spring trap-door, under which moved a rack in which his books were set up separately on their backs. He arranged his study hours for each lesson and connected the machinery of his desk to the clock, so that at the appointed moment, the trap-door opened, dropped the book into its rack, moved this along, threw up the next book and closed the trap under it. His bed was a machine, utterly destructive to the "little more sleep" of the sluggard. It was hung on a pivot, and supported at such a height that when turned up, it stood nearly perpendicularly foot down. The foot was held up by a lever.

Beside the bed was the lamp stand, on which the fluid lamp, then in use, was placed at night. To this bed the clock was connected and then set for rising. In the morning the machine took off the extinguisher, struck a match, lighted the lamp, and then withdrew the lever, letting the bed down and bringing its occupants out on his feet. I have known him to satisfy the curiosity of visitors by putting them into the bed wrong end to, and so bring them out head down. In summer time he connected this bed to the east window by a linen thread. A sunglass was so adjusted as to burn off this thread when the sun came to the right position.

Judge Griswold and myself roomed opposite him and he arranged signals by which we were often called in to see a bit of fun, in particular, with his "loafer-chair." As soon as the supposed loafer, but real victim, leaned back, he pressed a concealed spring which fired an old pistol, directly under the seat. The wonderful leaps of the victims were worth seeing. Nor did John forget the ladies, who sometimes came to see his machines. Out of a raisin, a huge vicious-looking black spider was made, which was so suspended as to drop just before the fair visitor when she was well seated in his best chair. It was delicious to hear them scream. John Muir taught school near Madison one winter, where his clock built his fire for him every morning. It only remains to say that he now has the reputation of knowing more of Yosemite Valley and the Nevada mountains than any other man living.—Oconomowoc (Wis.) Local.

MOVEMENTS OF THE STARS.—Modern observations have shown that the stars are not really fixed, but have actual motions of their own through space. This motion is so slow that it would require thousands of years to produce a change perceptible to the naked eye. As a general rule, the brightest stars have the greatest proper motion. As far as has yet been observed, these motions take place in perfectly straight lines; so that if the stars are moving in orbits they must be so great that, with one or two exceptions, no curvature has been detected Most astronomers think that, from mere observation, there is no reason to believe that the stars are revolving in orbits around a common center. Dr. Madler, however, through an examination of the proper motion of certain stars, came to the conclusion that there was a center around which the stars revolved, and fixed upon Alcyone, the brightest star of the Pleiades, as most probably that center. Others have suggested the constellation of Perseus. Mr. Hall, who has lately examined this subject, holds that neither of these positions will satisfy the necessary conditions. After a consideration of conditions dependent upon proper motions alone, he claims to have found two points that give satisfactory results; one in Andromeda, the other diametrically opposite, in Hydra. Several circumstances were used by him for deciding in which direction the center lies, one of which was that if it be in the direction of Hydra, there would have to be a great central mass around which the stars revolved. As there is no visible center, and no clustering of stars around it, he inferred that the center is toward Andromeda, and finally fixed its position at one degree south of the sixth magnitude Star 65, Piscium. There are three small nebulæ in the neighborhood, but nothing to indicate the presence of a great controlling mass.

"MISSING LINKS."—A special discourse was given by Professor Huxley, at the Jubilee Meeting of the British Association, on the rise and progress of palæontology, in which he dwelt on the strong reinforcement brought to the theory of organic evolution by the evidence of extinct forms. In the early days of the "Origin of Species," Mr. Darwin's opponents raised objections on the score of "missing links." Since that time, as Professor Huxley pointed out, missing link after missing link between species, between genera, nay, between seperate kingdoms of the animal world, as they used to be reckoned, has been supplied by our improved knowledge of the geological record. Professor Huxley reaffirmed, in short, the position which he took up in a discourse at the Poyal Institution last year—that if the doctrine of the variability of species had not existed, the advance of palæontology alone would have made it necessary to invent it. At this very meeting, we may add, Professor Marsh of Yale described in the department of Biology certain fossil birds from the Jurassic formation of Colorado, which had so many reptilian characters that it is hard to say that they had quite left off being reptiles. This connection may shock the people who are fond of birds, and look on the reptiles with the eyes of that gardener who justified his suppression of an unoffending toad by the simple remark, "I'll larn 'ee to be a twoad." But palæontology is inexorable, and if it leads anybody to look more kindly on toads so much the better.

The first colored man who ever went to Europe on a passport furnished by the United States Government, according to his own statement, was Robert Purvis, of Philadelphia. He applied for a passport, and received a scrap of paper bearing a few hurriedly written lines, signed by Louis McLane, then Secretary of State, and addressed to American consuls in Europe. "This brief little official document," says Mr. Purvis, "stated that I was a colored man, traveling in Europe, and it closed by expressing a hope that the persons to whom it was addressed would assist me, if I needed it during my travels. Being a native born American citizen, the tone of this note (for it did not have the slightest resemblance to a passport) made me very indignant." Mr. Purvis straightway handed the note to Mr. Robert Vaux, who said: "This is infamous; but I know President Jackson intimately, and I will see that you have a passport at once." Two or three days later, Mr. Vaux returned with a regular passport, signed by Andrew Jackson, President of the United States. Mr. Vaux said that, when he explained the case and handed him the note, President Jackson said · "By the Eternal! It can't be possible that an officer of the United States would issue a thing like this and send a native-born citizen to a foreign country with it." A genuine passport was made out at once and it is still in Mr. Purvis's possession.

A POETIC RECONCILIATION.—Some time ago a man came into a Baltimore lawyer's office in a state of great excitement, and asked him to commence proceedings for a divorce. Mr. Dobbin heard him through, and then said, "I think I have something that will exactly suit your case. Sit still, and I will read it to you."

The man remained seated, all ear, supposing he was to listen to Blackstone or Kent, when Mr. Dobbin began to read "Betsey and I are Out." By the time he had ended the man's eyes were full of tears.

"I believe I will go home," he said. And he and his wife have lived happily ever since.

Abdul Hassan Bey, an Egyptian official who lately visited General Merrill, of Andover, N. H., has presented to his host a slight acknowledgment of his hospitality in the shape of the mummy of a Princess of the house of Rameses II. Mr. Merrill is building a tower near his house, one story of which is to contain the princess and other curiosities.

SUNDAY ONE HUNDRED YEARS AGO.

No railroads, no carriages, no wagons, but everybody riding horseback—men, women and children—the father in the saddle, the mother on a pillion behind him, with the baby in her arms, and a small boy behind the mother on the horse's rump, holding on by the crupper, that was the way our grandfathers and grandmothers went to meeting on Sunday one hundred years ago There were no roads, only paths through the woods. The farmer had carts and sleds, but it was not easy riding in a cart bumping over stones, pitching into holes; so they rode horseback—dismounting at the horse block in front of the meeting house.

Many of the people were too poor to own a horse and were compelled to walk to meeting. They put on their best clothes, carried their shoes and stockings in their hands till near the meeting house, when they wiped the dust from their bare feet, and put on their stockings and shoes, that they might appear decent and respectable in the house of the Lord.

Many of the meeting houses in the country towns were large, square, barn-like buildings, with galleries on three sides, and a high pulpit with a sounding board—a sort of canopy made of wood, hanging over the pulpit, to send the minister's voice out to the congregation. The pews were square and the seats were hung on hinges. When the minister offered prayer the people turned up the seats and stood; when he said Amen they let them down with a bang, like the rattling of guns in a battle. The meeting houses were very cold in winter, for there were no stoves. The people thumped their feet, curled their hands in their mittens, turned their coat collars and mufflers above their ears, and shivered through the long prayers and longer sermon, from firstly up to seventeenthly, inference, practical observations and lastly.

There was no Sunday school at noon. In winter the people went into the neighboring houses, the women filling their foot stoves with coals, then eating their luncheons of gingerbread, doughnuts and cheese, the men smoking their pipes in the kitchen and warming themselves before the great fires blazing in wide mouthed chimneys.

In summer they gathered beneath the old trees at noon, and talked of what was going on in the world. The boys roamed the orchards, hunting birds' nests and tasting the ripening apples. They new all the best trees. The girls went into the neighboring gardens and looked at the bachelor buttons, hollyhocks and sweet-williams, and gathered sprigs of caraway to eat during the afternoon sermon.

They understood very little of the sermon, but the singing was glorious. All the good singers of the congregation sat in the singers' seats together—soprano, counter, bass and tenor. The counter ran very high and there were few who could sing it. The leader sounded the key on a pitch pipe each part joined in fa, sol, la, the leader beat time—not down, left, right, up, but dropping his hand and then his wrist, then raising wrist and hand, singing fuguing tunes, in which one part chased another like children at play, but all coming out together at the end.

When the meeting was over the people hurried home to kindle their fires, raking open the bed of coals on the hearth, sometimes to discover that the fire was out; if so, they rekindled it by striking a flint against a piece of steel, throwing a spark upon tinder, or by taking down the old flint-lock gun and flashing powder in the pan. One boy whom I knew was greatly astonished when the gun went off with a bang! He did not know that it was loaded.

It was not a long time to supper, and the boys and girls were as hungry as bears before the mother could get it ready. When supper was over all hands sat around the old fire-place and recited the catechism, beginning with "What is the chief end of man?" father, mother and all taking part.

If it was long to supper time, it was still longer to bed time. There were no Sunday school libraries, no papers filled with pictures, no newspapers, nothing to read except the Bible, catechism, and the primer with its pictures, and the rhymes accompanying them:

In Adam's fall
We sinned all.

Xerxes the great did die,
And so must you and I.

Everybody was glad when it was time to go to bed, for, take it all, in all Sunday was a tiresome day to boys and girls.

Although tiresome, the boys and girls who refrained from playing because it was the Lord's day; who learned the catechism because they had to, although they could see no sense in it; are they who have done great things for the world—building churches, schools, colleges, carrying the gospel and a Christian civilization to heathen lands. Through the instruction obtained in these meeting houses, and around those blazing fires in their humble homes, those boys and girls of one hundred years ago have given a mighty uplift to the world, and men and women everywhere are happier, better, for what they have done for the human race.

The peculiarities of day and night in Sweden strike the traveller very forcibly, after being accustomed to the temperate zones. In June the sun goes down in Stockholm a little before ten o'clock. There is a great illumination all night, as the sun passes round the earth toward the north pole; and the refraction of its rays is such that you can see to read at midnight without an artificial light. There is a mountain at the head of Bothnia, where, on the 21st of June, the sun does not appear to go down at all. The steamboat goes up from Stockholm for the purpose of conveying those who are curious to witness the phenomenon. It occurs only one night. The sun reaches the horizon, you can see the whole face of it, and in five minutes more it begins to rise. At the North Cape, latitude seventy-two degrees, the sun does not go down for several weeks. In June it would be about twenty-five degrees above the horizon at midnight. In the winter the sun disappears and is not seen for weeks, then it comes and remains for ten or fifteen minutes, after which descends, and finally is not seen at all, but makes a circle round the heavens. The Swedes are very industrious, and labor is reckoned by the hour, twelve hours being reckoned a day's work. Birds and animals take their accustomed rest at the usual hour, whether the sun goes down or not.

And after a year he returned and knocked again at the door. And again the voice asked, 'Who is there?' and he said 'It is thyself,' and immediately the door was opened to him."

For State Treasurer,

Gen. Silas M. Baily.

A man who from his youth up, has fought the battles of Republicanism in a region where no hope of success could add vigor and zeal to the contest, and with no reward save the consciousness of having served the cause he loved.

A man who has attested his love of liberty and law, by service on the field of glory and blood, who won his promotion in the glorious Pennsylvania Reserves, from Captain to Brigadier, by meritorious service on the field.

A man who stood in the red hell of battle at Drainesville, on the Peninsula, at Gaines' Mill, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, and the Wilderness, and who bore witness with his blood, that he loved his country well.

He bears upon his person the rough scars left by the cruel cannon ball, and will carry to his grave the evidence of his patriotism and courage.

He is able, and worthy to lead Republicans to Victory as he led his regiment to war —Speech of Attorney General Palmer, in Republican State Convention.

—The New York Republican State Convention was held yesterday. The stalwart faction were completely in the minority and after the test vote on Temporary Chairman which resulted in the selection of Senator Warner Miller by a majority of 108, the Conkling machine gracefully submitted to the inevitable, and the complete transfer of the organization was made without a bolt. Mr. Chauncey M. Depew, was chosen permanent Chairman of the Convention. The nominations were General Joseph B. Carr for Secretary of State, State Senator Ira Davenport for Comptroller, Leslie W. Russell for Attorney General, General Husted, of Westchester, for State Treasurer Silas Seymour for State Engineer and Judge Francis M. Finch for Judge of the Court of Appeals.

—Some compensation for the exploits of the Missouri train robbers is found in the awakening of a public sentiment in that State against the spirit of lawless deviltry which has long disgraced it. Governor Crittenden says on his own account, and in behalf of the people, that defiance of the law is "played out" in Missouri. The trial of Ryan produced great excitement throughout the State, and aroused a determination to exterminate the desperadoes who infest it, and who have hitherto found their most useful allies among weakminded people with just enough cowardice or romance in their composition to enjoy entertaining and concealing these night-riders and banditti.

—Through all the prevailing excitement and disturbance the work of reforming the administration of the Post-office and of retrenching superfluous or unprofitable expenditure goes steadily and bravely on. Last week another expedited Star route in Wyoming Territory was cut down, and a saving to the government of nearly twenty-seven thousand dollars annually thereby effected. The public must by this time have come to the conclusion that the possibilities of the Post-office as a money-making enterprise have hitherto been greatly underestimated

—By a curious coincidence, a letter written by Mr. Garfield has been found, in which the practice of acquitting criminals accused of murder because of their alleged insanity is vigorously deprecated and condemned There is, however, little or no probability that his own murderer will succeed in escaping condign punishment by means of such a defence An effort will, of course, be made to prove him insane, but its success is unimaginable.

—A question as to the powers of a Cabinet officer while the President is incapable of performing the duties his office has been raised by some dismissed Pension Office clerks.

—A meeting of the promoters of the Garfield Memorial Hospital was held in Washington yesterday and preliminary steps were taken to carry the project through.

—Latest advices from Arizona state that our troops were engaged fighting the hostiles, who, though surrounded, were trying to escape into Mexico.

—The International Cotton Exposition at Atlanta, Ga., opened yesterday, successfully.

—One point in the new Cabinet slate is settled, and that is that James will remain Postmaster General The authority for this statement is excellent, coming as it does from a gentleman who knows whereof he speaks. Arthur and James have always been on good terms, and the retention of Mr. James as Postmaster General meets with approbation from all of President Arthur's friends. The President is zealous in his determination that the Star Route thieves shall be prosecuted into the penitentiary, and James is the man to do it.—Washington Dispatch to The Cincinnati Commercial.

—James H. Birch, has announced his intention of erecting a drinking fountain in front of the Opera House in Burlington, and presenting it to that city. The fountain is being made at Mitchell's stone works in our borough. It will be of brown stone over thirty feet high and will be surmounted with a bronze figure.

—Thomas Satterthwaite, an old and highly esteemed citizen of Falls township, died suddenly last night.

—The Hon. Beverly Tucker of Virginia, an old-time and old-fashioned Democrat, is in favor of a Republican being elected President pro tem. of the Senate. Unfortunately for the peace of the country, however, Mr. Tucker is not a member of that body. It is curious how many Democrats outside the Senate are in favor of a Republican for President pro tem., and how many inside of it are opposed to it.

—Senator Edmunds, during all the years he has been in the Senate, has never, it is said, revised a single speech for publication He never uses notes, and knows exactly what he means to say before he rises from his chair.

—Secretary Windom's re-election to the Senate from Minnesota is said to be entirely probable. It certainly ought to be if he desires it.

—Charles E. Smith, editor of Philadelphia Press, will deliver an address at the Burlington County Agricultural Society, on Thursday, the third day of the fair.

—Captain Howgate has been committed to jail in default of $40,000 bail. A writ of habeas corpus was issued returnable on Friday next.

—Nelson W. Aldrich was yesterday elected United States Senator from Rhode Island in place of Senator Burnside, deceased.

—The army retired list is limited to 400. There are at present only seven vacancies, while fifty officers are eligible to retirement.

—Brady, Brown, French and Turner, defendants in the star route cases, yesterday gave bail for their appearance to answer.

—The Democrats of Massachusetts nominated a State ticket headed by Charles P. Thomson for Governor.

—Marvin, the bigamist and forger, pleaded guilty yesterday and was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment.

—The Roman Catholic College of Ste. Therese, near Montreal, was burned yesterday. Loss $300,000.

—Several small vessels were lost or badly damaged yesterday morning, in Chesapeake Bay, by a heavy gale.

—An oil train took fire near Port Jervis, N. Y, 350,000 gallons of oil destroyed

—Fletcher Harper, of Harper & Bros, is dead.

—A Western man thought that the "malarious flats" of Washington were politicians

—Forty Italian laborers on the Delaware and Lackawanna Railway struck work at Oswego, N Y., yesterday and began rioting. The Sheriff was overpowered and troops were called out to quell the disturbance.

—A villa on the bluff at Yorktown is building for the use of President Arthur at the coming centennial celebration Six Steubens, descendents of Baron Von Steuben, are on their way from Hamburg to attend the celebration.

WHITTIER'S TRIBUTE TO GARFIELD

The following letter from John G. Whittier was read at the memorial meeting in Amesbury —

DANVERS, Mass, 9th mo., 24. 1881

W. H. B Currier

MY DEAR FRIEND—I regret that it is not in my power to join the citizens of Amesbury and Salisbury in the memorial services on the occasion of the death of our lamented President. But in heart and sympathy, I am with you. I share the great sorrow which overshadows the land, I fully appreciate the irretrievable loss. But it seems to me that the occasion is one, for thankfulness as well as grief. Through all the stages of the solemn tragedy which has just closed with the death of our noblest and best, I have felt that the Divine Providence was overruling the mighty affliction—that the patient sufferer at Washington was drawing with cords of sympathy all sections and parties nearer to each other. And now, when South and North, Democrat and Republican, Radical and conservative, lift their voices in one unbroken accord of lamentation, when I see how, in spite of the greed and gain, the lust of office, the strife and meanness of party politics, the great heart of the nation proves sound and loyal, I feel a new hope for the republic. I have a firmer faith in its stability It is said that no man liveth and no man dieth to himself, and the pure and noble life of Garfield, and his slow, long martyrdom, so bravely borne in the view of all, are, I believe, bearing for us, as a people, "the peaceable fruits of righteousness." We are stronger, wiser, better for them. With him it is well. His mission fulfilled, he goes to his grave by the lakeside, honored and lamented as man never was before. The whole world mourns him. There is no speech nor language where the voice of praise is not heard. About his grave gathered, with heads uncovered, the vast brotherhood of man

And with us it is well also. We are nearer a united people than ever before. We are at peace with all, our future is full of promise, our industrial and financial condition is hopeful. God grant that, while our material interests prosper, the moral and spiritual influence of this occasion may be permanently felt, that the solemn sacrament of sorrow whereof we have been partakers may be blest to the promotion of the righteousness which exalts a nation.

Thy friend, JOHN G. WHITTIER.

—It is a singular fact that no President of the United States, from Washington to Garfield, was born in a city, and but one, John Quincy Adams, was ever a resident of a city at the time of election.

KAHOKA, Mo., Feb. 9, 1880.

A Difficult Problem, Solved

Ambition, competition and over-exertion use up the vital powers of men and women, so that a desire for stimulants seems to be a natural human passion, and drunkenness prevails on account of this necessity for bodily and mental invigoration. Parker's Ginger Tonic fairly solves the difficult problem, and has brought health and happiness into many desolate homes. It does not tear down an already debilitated system, but builds it up without intoxicating.—Enquirer. See other column.

For State Treasurer,
Gen. Silas M. Baily.

A man who from his youth up, has fought the battles of Republicanism in a region where no hope of success could add vigor and zeal to the contest, and with no reward save the consciousness of having served the cause he loved.

A man who has attested his love of liberty and law, by service on the field of glory and blood, who won his promotion in the glorious Pennsylvania Reserves, from Captain to Brigadier, by meritorious service on the field.

A man who stood in the red hell of battle at Drainesville, on the Peninsula, at Gaines' Mill, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, and the Wilderness, and who bore witness with his blood, that he loved his country well.

He bears upon his person the rough scars left by the cruel cannon ball, and will carry to his grave the evidence of his patriotism and courage.

He is able, and worthy to lead Republicans to Victory as he led his regiment to war —Speech of Attorney General Palmer, in Republican State Convention.

—The New York Republican State Convention was held yesterday. The stalwart faction were completely in the minority and after the test vote on Temporary Chairman which resulted in the selection of Senator Warner Miller by a majority of 108, the Conkling machine gracefully submitted to the inevitable, and the complete transfer of the organization was made without a bolt. Mr. Chauncey M. Depew, was chosen permanent Chairman of the Convention. The nominations were: General Joseph B. Carr for Secretary of State, State Senator Ira Davenport for Comptroller, Leslie W. Russell for Attorney General, General Husted, of Westchester, for State Treasurer; Silas Seymour for State Engineer and Judge Francis M. Finch for Judge of the Court of Appeals.

—Some compensation for the exploits of the Missouri train robbers is found in the awakening of a public sentiment in that State against the spirit of lawless deviltry which has long disgraced it. Governor Crittenden says on his own account, and in behalf of the people, that defiance of the law is "played out" in Missouri. The trial of Ryan produced great excitement throughout the State, and aroused a determination to exterminate the desperadoes who infest it, and who have hitherto found their most useful allies among weakminded people with just enough cowardice or romance in their composition to enjoy entertaining and concealing these night-riders and banditti.

—Through all the prevailing excitement and disturbance the work of reforming the administration of the Post-office and of retrenching superfluous or unprofitable expenditure goes steadily and bravely on. Last week another expedited Star route in Wyoming Territory was cut down, and a saving to the government of nearly twenty-seven thousand dollars annually thereby effected. The public must by this time have come to the conclusion that the possibilities of the Post-office as a money-making enterprise have hitherto been greatly underestimated

—By a curious coincidence, a letter written by Mr. Garfield has been found, in which the practice of acquitting criminals accused of murder because of their alleged insanity is vigorously deprecated and condemned. There is, however, little or no probability that his own murderer will succeed in escaping condign punishment by means of such a defence. An effort will, of course, be made to prove him insane, but its success is unimaginable.

—A question as to the powers of a Cabinet officer while the President is incapable of performing the duties his office has been raised by some dismissed Pension Office clerks.

—A meeting of the promoters of the Garfield Memorial Hospital was held in Washington yesterday and preliminary steps were taken to carry the project through.

—Latest advices from Arizona state that our troops were engaged fighting the hostiles, who, though surrounded, were trying to escape into Mexico.

—The International Cotton Exposition at Atlanta, Ga., opened yesterday, successfully.

—One point in the new Cabinet slate is settled, and that is that James will remain Postmaster General. The authority for this statement is excellent, coming as it does from a gentleman who knows whereof he speaks. Arthur and James have always been on good terms, and the retention of Mr. James as Postmaster General meets with approbation from all of President Arthur's friends. The President is zealous in his determination that the Star Route thieves shall be prosecuted into the penitentiary, and James is the man to do it.—Washington Dispatch to The Cincinnati Commercial.

—James H. Birch, has announced his intention of erecting a drinking fountain in front of the Opera House in Burlington, and presenting it to that city. The fountain is being made at Mitchell's stone works in our borough. It will be of brown stone over thirty feet high and will be surmounted with a bronze figure.

—Thomas Satterthwaite, an old and highly esteemed citizen of Falls township, died suddenly last night.

—The Hon. Beverly Tucker of Virginia, an old-time and old-fashioned Democrat, is in favor of a Republican being elected President pro tem. of the Senate. Unfortunately for the peace of the country, however, Mr. Tucker is not a member of that body. It is curious how many Democrats outside the Senate are in favor of a Republican for President pro tem., and how many inside of it are opposed to it.

—Senator Edmunds, during all the years he has been in the Senate, has never, it is said, revised a single speech for publication He never uses notes, and knows exactly what he means to say before he rises from his chair.

—Secretary Windom's re-election to the Senate from Minnesota is said to be entirely probable. It certainly ought to be if he desires it.

—Charles E. Smith, editor of Philadelphia Press, will deliver an address at the Burlington County Agricultural Society, on Thursday, the third day of the fair.

—Captain Howgate has been committed to jail in default of $40,000 bail. A writ of habeas corpus was issued returnable on Friday next.

—Nelson W. Aldrich was yesterday elected United States Senator from Rhode Island in place of Senator Burnside, deceased.

—The army retired list is limited to 400. There are at present only seven vacancies, while fifty officers are eligible to retirement.

—Brady, Brown, French and Turner, defendants in the star route cases, yesterday gave bail for their appearance to answer.

—The Democrats of Massachusetts nominated a State ticket headed by Charles P. Thomson for Governor.

—Marvin, the bigamist and forger, pleaded guilty yesterday and was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment.

—The Roman Catholic College of Ste. Therese, near Montreal, was burned yesterday. Loss $300,000.

—Several small vessels were lost or badly damaged yesterday morning, in Chesapeake Bay, by a heavy gale.

—An oil train took fire near Port Jervis, N. Y., 350,000 gallons of oil destroyed.

—Fletcher Harper, of Harper & Bros., is dead.

—A Western man thought that the "malarious flats" of Washington were politicians.

—Forty Italian laborers on the Delaware and Lackawanna Railway struck work at Oswego, N. Y., yesterday and began rioting. The Sheriff was overpowered and troops were called out to quell the disturbance.

—A villa on the bluff at Yorktown is building for the use of President Arthur at the coming centennial celebration. Six Steubens, descendents of Baron Von Steuben, are on their way from Hamburg to attend the celebration.

WHITTIER'S TRIBUTE TO GARFIELD

The following letter from John G. Whittier was read at the memorial meeting in Amesbury.—

DANVERS, MASS., 9th mo., 24, 1881.

W. H. B. Currier:

MY DEAR FRIEND—I regret that it is not in my power to join the citizens of Amesbury and Salisbury in the memorial services on the occasion of the death of our lamented President. But in heart and sympathy, I am with you. I share the great sorrow which overshadows the land; I fully appreciate the irretrievable loss. But it seems to me that the occasion is one for thankfulness as well as grief. Through all the stages of the solemn tragedy which has just closed with the death of our noblest and best, I have felt that the Divine Providence was overruling the mighty affliction—that the patient sufferer at Washington was drawing with cords of sympathy all sections and parties nearer to each other. And now, when South and North, Democrat and Republican, Radical and conservative, lift their voices in one unbroken accord of lamentation; when I see how, in spite of the greed and gain, the lust of office, the strifes and meanness of party politics, the great heart of the nation proves sound and loyal, I feel a new hope for the republic. I have a firmer faith in its stability. It is said that no man liveth and no man dieth to himself; and the pure and noble life of Garfield, and his slow, long martyrdom, so bravely borne in the view of all, are, I believe, bearing for us, as a people, "the peaceable fruits of righteousness." We are stronger, wiser, better for them. With him it is well. His mission fulfilled, he goes to his grave by the lakeside, honored and lamented as man never was before. The whole world mourns him. There is no speech nor language where the voice of praise is not heard. About his grave gathered, with heads uncovered, the vast brotherhood of man.

And with us it is well also. We are nearer a united people than ever before. We are at peace with all; our future is full of promise; our industrial and financial condition is hopeful. God grant that, while our material interests prosper, the moral and spiritual influence of this occasion may be permanently felt; that the solemn sacrament of sorrow whereof we have been partakers may be blest to the promotion of the righteousness which exalteth a nation.

Thy friend, JOHN G. WHITTIER.

—It is a singular fact that no President of the United States, from Washington to Garfield, was born in a city, and but one, John Quincy Adams, was ever a resident of a city at the time of election.

KAHOKA, MO., Feb. 9, 1880.

I purchased five bottles of your Hop Bitters of Bishop & Co. last fall, for my daughter, and am well pleased with the Bitters. They did her more good than all the medicine she has taken for six years.

WM. T. MCCLURE.

The above is from a very reliable farmer, whose daughter was in poor health for seven or eight years, and could obtain no relief until she used Hop Bitters. She is now in as good health as any person in the country. We have large sales, and they are making remarkable cures.

☞Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is mild and soothing in his immediate and apparent effects, and possesses far-reaching and powerful healing qualities which its persistent use will demonstrate in any case of coughs, colds, throat or lung troubles of any kind

☞ Unhealthy or inactive kidneys cause gravel, Bright's disease, rheumatism and a horde of other serious and fatal diseases, which can be prevented with Hop Bitters, if taken in time.

A Difficult Problem Solved.

Ambition, competition and over-exertion use up the vital powers of men and women, so that a desire for stimulants seems to be a natural human passion, and drunkenness prevails on account of this necessity for bodily and mental invigoration. Parker's Ginger Tonic fairly solves the difficult problem, and has brought health and happiness into many desolate homes. It does not tear down an already debilitated system, but builds it up without intoxicating.—Enquirer. See other column.

No human agency can so speedily cleanse the blood, clear the complexion and skin, restore the hair and cure every species of itching, scaly and scrofulous humors of the skin, scalp and blood as the Cuticura Remedies.

For State Treasurer,

Gen. Silas M. Baily.

A man who from his youth up, has fought the battles of Republicanism in a region where no hope of success could add vigor and zeal to the contest, and with no reward save the consciousness of having served the cause he loved.

A man who has attested his love of liberty and law, by service on the field of glory and blood, who won his promotion in the glorious Pennsylvania Reserves, from Captain to Brigadier, by meritorious service on the field.

A man who stood in the red hell of battle at Drainesville, on the Peninsula, at Gaines' Mill, South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, and the Wilderness, and who bore witness with his blood, that he loved his country well.

He bears upon his person the rough scars left by the cruel cannon ball, and will carry to his grave the evidence of his patriotism and courage.

He is able, and worthy to lead Republicans to Victory as he led his regiment to war.—Speech of Attorney General Palmer, in Republican State Convention.

—The New York Republican State Convention was held yesterday. The stalwart faction were completely in the minority and after the test vote on Temporary Chairman which resulted in the selection of Senator Warner Miller by a majority of 108, the Conkling machine gracefully submitted to the inevitable, and the complete transfer of the organization was made without a bolt. Mr. Chauncey M. Depew, was chosen permanent Chairman of the Convention. The nominations were General Joseph B. Carr for Secretary of State, State Senator Ira Davenport for Comptroller, Leslie W. Russell for Attorney General, General Husted, of Westchester, for State Treasurer, Silas Seymour for State Engineer and Judge Francis M. Finch for Judge of the Court of Appeals.

—Some compensation for the exploits of the Missouri train robbers is found in the awakening of a public sentiment in that State against the spirit of lawless deviltry which has long disgraced it. Governor Crittenden says on his own account, and in behalf of the people, that defiance of the law is "played out" in Missouri. The trial of Ryan produced great excitement throughout the State, and aroused a determination to exterminate the desperadoes who infest it, and who have hitherto found their most useful allies among weakminded people with just enough cowardice or romance in their composition to enjoy entertaining and concealing these night-riders and banditti.

—Through all the prevailing excitement and disturbance the work of reforming the administration of the Post-office and of retrenching superfluous or unprofitable expenditure goes steadily and bravely on. Last week another expedited Star route in Wyoming Territory was cut down, and a saving to the government of nearly twenty-seven thousand dollars annually thereby effected. The public must by this time have come to the conclusion that the possibilities of the Post-office as a money-making enterprise have hitherto been greatly underestimated

—By a curious coincidence, a letter written by Mr. Garfield has been found, in which the practice of acquitting criminals accused of murder because of their alleged insanity is vigorously deprecated and condemned. There is, however, little or no probability that his own murderer will succeed in escaping condign punishment by means of such a defence. An effort will, of course, be made to prove him insane, but its success is unimaginable.

—A question as to the powers of a Cabinet officer while the President is incapable of performing the duties his office has been raised by some dismissed Pension Office clerks.

—A meeting of the promoters of the Garfield Memorial Hospital was held in Washington yesterday and preliminary steps were taken to carry the project through.

—Latest advices from Arizona state that our troops were engaged fighting the hostiles, who, though surrounded, were trying to escape into Mexico.

—The International Cotton Exposition at Atlanta, Ga., opened yesterday, successfully.

—One point in the new Cabinet slate is settled, and that is that James will remain Postmaster General. The authority for this statement is excellent, coming as it does from a gentleman who knows whereof he speaks. Arthur and James have always been on good terms, and the retention of Mr. James as Postmaster General meets with approbation from all of President Arthur's friends. The President is zealous in his determination that the Star Route thieves shall be prosecuted into the penitentiary, and James is the man to do it.—Washington Dispatch to The Cincinnati Commercial.

—James H. Birch, has announced his intention of erecting a drinking fountain in front of the Opera House in Burlington, and presenting it to that city. The fountain is being made at Mitchell's stone works in our borough. It will be of brown stone over thirty feet high and will be surmounted with a bronze figure.

—Thomas Satterthwaite, an old and highly esteemed citizen of Falls township, died suddenly last night.

—The Hon. Beverly Tucker of Virginia, an old-time and old-fashioned Democrat, is in favor of a Republican being elected President pro tem. of the Senate. Unfortunately for the peace of the country, however, Mr. Tucker is not a member of that body. It is curious how many Democrats outside the Senate are in favor of a Republican for President pro tem., and how many inside of it are opposed to it.

—Senator Edmunds, during all the years he has been in the Senate, has never, it is said, revised a single speech for publication He never uses notes, and knows exactly what he means to say before he rises from his chair.

—Secretary Windom's re-election to the Senate from Minnesota is said to be entirely probable. It certainly ought to be if he desires it.

—Charles E. Smith, editor of Philadelphia Press, will deliver an address at the Burlington County Agricultural Society, on Thursday, the third day of the fair.

—Captain Howgate has been committed to jail in default of $40,000 bail. A writ of habeas corpus was issued returnable on Friday next.

—Nelson W. Aldrich was yesterday elected United States Senator from Rhode Island in place of Senator Burnside, deceased

—The army retired list is limited to 400. There are at present only seven vacancies, while fifty officers are eligible to retirement.

—Brady, Brown, French and Turner, defendants in the star route cases, yesterday gave bail for their appearance to answer.

—The Democrats of Massachusetts nominated a State ticket headed by Charles P. Thomson for Governor.

—Marvin, the bigamist and forger, pleaded guilty yesterday and was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment.

—The Roman Catholic College of Ste. Therese, near Montreal, was burned yesterday Loss $300,000.

—Several small vessels were lost or badly damaged yesterday morning, in Chesapeake Bay, by a heavy gale.

—An oil train took fire near Port Jervis, N Y., 350,000 gallons of oil destroyed.

—Fletcher Harper, of Harper & Bros., is dead.

—A Western man thought that the "malarious flats" of Washington were politicians.

—Forty Italian laborers on the Delaware and Lackawanna Railway struck work at Oswego, N Y., yesterday and began rioting. The Sheriff was overpowered and troops were called out to quell the disturbance.

—A villa on the bluff at Yorktown is building for the use of President Arthur at the coming centennial celebration. Six Steubens, descendents of Baron Von Steuben, are on their way from Hamburg to attend the celebration.

WHITTIER'S TRIBUTE TO GARFIELD

The following letter from John G. Whittier was read at the memorial meeting in Amesbury —

DANVERS, MASS, 9th mo., 24, 1881.

W. H. B. Currier

MY DEAR FRIEND—I regret that it is not in my power to join the citizens of Amesbury and Sallsbury in the memorial services on the occasion of the death of our lamented President. But in heart and sympathy, I am with you. I share the great sorrow which overshadows the land. I fully appreciate the irretrievable loss. But it seems to me that the occasion is one for thankfulness as well as grief. Through all the stages of the solemn tragedy which has just closed with the death of our noblest and best, I have felt that the Divine Providence was overruling the mighty affliction—that the patient sufferer at Washington was drawing with cords of sympathy all sections and parties nearer to each other. And now, when South and North, Democrat and Republican, Radical and conservative, lift their voices in one unbroken accord of lamentation, when I see how, in spite of the greed and gain, the lust of office, the strifes and meanness of party politics, the great heart of the nation proves sound and loyal, I feel a new hope for the republic. I have a firmer faith in its stability. It is said that no man liveth and no man dieth to himself; and the pure and noble life of Garfield, and his slow, long martyrdom, so bravely borne in the view of all, are, I believe, bearing for us, as a people, "the peaceable fruits of righteousness." We are stronger, wiser, better for them. With him it is well. His mission fulfilled, he goes to his grave by the lakeside, honored and lamented as man never was before. The whole world mourns him. There is no speech nor language where the voice of praise is not heard. About his grave gathered, with heads uncovered, the vast brotherhood of man.

And with us it is well also. We are nearer a united people than ever before. We are at peace with all; our future is full of promise; our industrial and financial condition is hopeful. God grant that, while our material interests prosper, the moral and spiritual influence of this occasion may be permanently felt, that the solemn sacrament of sorrow whereof we have been partakers may be blest to the promotion of the righteousness which exalts a nation.

Thy friend, JOHN G. WHITTIER.

—It is a singular fact that no President of the United States, from Washington to Garfield, was born in a city, and but one, John Quincy Adams, was ever a resident of a city at the time of election.

KAHOKA, MO., Feb. 9, 1880.

I purchased five bottles of your Hop Bitters of Bishop & Co. last fall, for my daughter, and am well pleased with the Bitters. They did her more good than all the medicine she has taken for six years.

WM. T. MCCLURE.

The above is from a very reliable farmer, whose daughter was in poor health for seven or eight years, and could obtain no relief until she used Hop Bitters. She is now in as good health as any person in the country. We have large sales, and they are making remarkable cures.

☞Unhealthy or inactive kidneys cause gravel, Bright's disease, rheumatism and a horde of other serious and fatal diseases, which can be prevented with Hop Bitters, if taken in time.

A Difficult Problem Solved

Ambition, competition and over-exertion use up the vital powers of men and women, so that a desire for stimulants seems to be a natural human passion, and drunkenness prevails on account of this necessity for bodily and mental invigoration. Parker's Ginger Tonic fairly solves the difficult problem, and has brought health and happiness into many desolate homes. It does not tear down an already debilitated system, but builds it up without intoxicating.—Enquirer. See other column.

W B BAKER, P M

—Mr. Delap took charge as Superintendent of the Public Schools on Tuesday.

—Dr. Adams has sold the house adjoining his own residence to Wm. B Rogers, Sr., for $5,000.

—A cake walk at Cabeen's Hall to take place soon, is an event which will cause a flutter in the ranks of our colored population,

—Edward Minster, the Republican nominee for Register of Wills is likely to make a good run in this end of the county where he has hosts of friends.

—Nineteen thirty-seconds of the schooner "William Tice" has been sold by Bristol owners to parties in New York. She will be put in the Virginia pine wood trade

—A young man of the Third Ward, named Patrick McGee, paid nearly four dollars to 'Squire Bailey for having enjoyed the pleasure of lounging at the canal bridge.

—The sun must have smiled to himself yesterday morning when he arose and witnessed the host of shivering mortals who hade been complaining so strongly of the warm weather.

—A game of base-ball took place last Saturday between the Keystone and a combination nine who call themselves the Hit-or-Miss. The combination team was defeated by the score of 28 to 5.

—The memorial service at the Baptist Church last Sunday, was well attended. The sermon by the pastor, Rev. L. G Beck, was an able, appropriate and touching tribute to the late President.

—George S. Stone & Son, plumbers, have rented the Gilkeson property on Mill street, opposite Hoguet's drug store, where the will establish a branch of their business which will be an addition to their up town office.

—William P. Wright has purchased the dwelling and store room belonging to Joseph Kinsey's estate, paying therefor the sum of $8,000. He has also bought the stock of hardware, and will embark in that business.

—An effigy of Guiteau, after being exhibited around town in a wagon, on Saturday evening, was burned on one of the vacant lots of the borough, amid considerable excitement in the ranks of the boy kingdom

—A slight fire at a house in the Third Ward, along the railroad, yesterday caused the fire alarm to be sounded but the flames were extinguished so quickly that there was no need of help from the fire companies.

—Prof. Krichbaum filled the pulpit of the Methodist Church last Sunday evening, preaching an interesting discourse This was his last appearance in public previous to taking his departure from our borough for his new field of labor.

—Capt. C. H. Fenton has bought the "Florence Nowell," a schooner of from 300 to 400 tons capacity, and takes charge of her this week. The Nowell has been in the coastwise trade, running principally between the coast of Florida and New York —Last Saturday a drunken scissors grinder who combined pugilistic skill with his mechanical ability, made an assault upon Henry M. Wright. He was locked up until he was sober and then paid for fines all that he had earned during his stay in town.

—In a statement furnished by Messrs Thomas Hughes & Co., the liabilities are placed at about $146,000, apportioned as follows For merchandise, $30,000, on real estate mortgages, $88,000, judgments entered against the firm on Wednesday last in favor of L. Jones, $46,000 The amount of the assets are not stated.

—A parlor entertainment and fair is to be given by the Ladies of St. James' Church, on Tuesday afternoon and evening next, 11th inst., at the residence of Mr. J. H. Bostwick, Radcliffe street, for the benefit of Grace church, Hulmeville The admission has been placed at 15 cents for adults, and 5 cents for children.

—The concert this evening at the Baptist Church being the beginning of the season's entertainments will doubtless be well attended. Several of the ladies and gentlemen from Philadelphia, who took part in a similar concert last winter will again give our public a chance to hear excellent music while additional vocal talent will also participate.

—At a meeting of the stockholders of the Cottage Building Company, held on the 26th ult., it was decided to close up its affairs at once. Those who have not borrowed will receive $191 per share, and those who have will be allowed that amount in payment of their loans. Borrowers who settle before next meeting will not be charged interest on the current month.

—Last Friday afternoon, the closing up of Prof. Krichbaum's connection with the schools, he was very much surprised by the presentation by the pupils of the grammar school of one of Roger's statues, representing Columbus in chains after his discovery of America. The presentation speech was made by Miss Anna Brady. Mr. Krichbaum was very much affected by this exhibition of the esteem in which he was held by his pupils, and found difficulty in making an immediate reply.

—The Republican county convention was held last Thursday at Doylestown Thomas Eastburn, of Langhorne, who presided last year, called the meeting to order, stating that the first business was the selection of a chairman for the day. Samuel B. Thatcher, of Haycock, was elected by acclamation to the position, with a long list of vice presidents, and the editors of all the Republican papers in the county as secretaries. The following ticket was nominated Sheriff, R Francis Rapp, Tinicum Recorder, Robert N. Boyd, New Hope, Register, Edward Minster, Bristol township, Clerk of Quarter Sessions, Henry G. Moyer, Perkasie; Clerk of Orphans' Court, Benjamin F. Boyer, Springfield, Commissioners, Michael Fackenthall, Springfield, Isaac Ryan, Warwick, Auditors, Joseph H. Gross, New Britain, Edwin J Burton, Bristol, Director of the Poor, Edward Ivins, Northampton. Resolutions of sorrow for the death of President Garfield and of assurances of support of President Arthur were passed and a platform adopted almost identical with the one adopted by the State convention.

—By the removal of Prof. Krichbaum from our borough the community loses a good man and the influence that such a man exerts. During the eight years he resided here he made friends among all classes of society. His administration of the schools was eminently successful and during his supervision their standard was greatly improved. His relations with the school board, and the teachers who aided faithfully in carrying out his policy, were always of the most pleasant character and the severance of his connection with the schools was regretted upon all sides. He proved himself a faithful teacher and one of the ablest educators in the county. Prof Woodruff, the county superintendent, expressed himself as sustaining a personal loss by the removal of Prof. Krichbaum from his district and regretted the necessity which caused a change in the superintendency of the schools. But not only in his chosen profession, but as citizen, friend and neighbor Prof. Krichbaum will be greatly missed in the community, and the good wishes of a large circle of friends and acquaintances will go with him in his new field of labor.

—A fatal accident occured yesterday at the farm of Andrew Schaffer just outside the borough limits. His son Michael a young man between twenty and thirty years of age took the horses to the barn about noon expecting to return immediately to the house for his dinner. As he did not make his appearance one of the family went to the barn to summon him and found him lying insensible upon the floor. He was conveyed to the house and a physician summoned. He recovered sufficiently to tell that one of the horses, one recently purchased, had kicked him in the side and shortly after he expired. The young man was steady, industrious and capable and intelligent in regard to everything pertaining to his business. His death is as sad as it was sudden. It is a heavy blow to the family

—Thomas Stradling, of Morrisville, died very suddenly in that borough on Wednesday of last week. He was engaged repairing a pump for James Cawley, and complaining of being tired, he sat down on the side of the well, put his hands up to his face, drew a long breath, fell over on one side, and instantly expired. On the same day, Ann M. Carr, a resident of Bridgewater, who had apparently in good health, while taking a walk out in her yard, suddenly stopped, sank to the ground, and in a few minutes was dead. Deputy Coroner Young was notified in both cases, juries were summoned and inquests held. The jury in each case rendered a verdict of death from heart disease.

—The interesting services at St Mark's Church last Sunday, attracted extraordinary attendance both morning and afternoon. In the morning nearly one hundred boys and girls neatly arrayed, the girls all in white, received their first communion and in the afternoon they were confirmed by the Right Reverend Bishop Shannahan. The new bell was likewise blessed and the ceremony fully and interestingly explained in the sermon by Rev. Dr. Horstmann of Philadelphia. The ceremonies of the occasion were imposing and solemn. Father Ward is to be congratulated upon the prosperity of his charge.

—William C. Watson, who for several years past, has had charge of the job printing department of the Gazette office has gone to Philadelphia to continue his work in the "art preservative of all arts." His steady and industrious habits and practical skill in his trade will be excellent recommendations for him in his new location. We wish him great and immediate success —The attention of voters is directed to the important fact that to-morrow is the last day that they can pay the county tax in order to enable them to vote. Justice of the Peace, William Louderbough, is the collector, and may be found at his office opposite the Cottage Hotel.

—The following officers of Hopkins Lodge, I. O. O. F., were installed last night. John G. Tabram, N. G., Frank T. Chambers, V. G., Clarance N. Peirce, Financial Secretary and John W. Bailey, Treasurer.

—Hon. George Lear, Sheriff Samuel L. Ely of Doylestown, and Prof. Woodruff of Newtown, were in Bristol, on Tuesday.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Feb. 2, 1880.

I know Hop Bitters will bear recommendation honestly. All who use them confer upon them the highest encomiums, and give them credit for making cures—all the proprietors claim for them. I have kept them since they were first offered to the public. They took high rank from the first, and maintained it, and are more called for than all others combined. So long as they keep up their high reputation for purity and usefulness, I shall continue to recommend them—something I have never before done with any other patent medicine.

J. J. BABCOCK, M. D.

—The tramp who thinks he can attack with impunity Bucks county girls and get away successfully would do well to revise his opinion before attempting to carry it into operation. Recently one of these gentry acted entirely too impulsively in a matter of this kind. Two cousins, buxom young ladies, of this county, were about to cross the bridge between Trenton and Morrisville in a wagon when a rough looking and robust ruffian jumped in the wagon and made an effort to grab a small satchel lying in the bottom of the vehicle. The young lady who was not driving observed the movement and anticipated it and securing the satchel began belaboring the intruder with it about the head and shoulders. The cousin driving was prompt to aid in the attack with the whip and the man finding things getting entirely too warm for comfort was considering the advisability of beating a masterly retreat. His plan was defeated, however, for the two ladies held him securely in the wagon and driving into Morrisville triumphantly delivered him up to the authorities. He now lanquishes at Doylestown These courageous girls, good representatives of Bucks county pluck belong to one of the branches of the well known Schaffer family.

HARE OR RABBIT SHOOTING.—At the last session of the State Legislation certain amendments were made to the game laws concerning fishing and deer and rabbit shooting. The following is the text of the present law regarding hares or rabbits "No person shall kill or expose for sale, or have in his possession after the same has been killed, any hare commonly called rabbit between the first day of January and the first day of November in any year under a penalty of five dollars for each and every hare or rabbit so killed or exposed for sale or had in his possession. No person shall hunt or cause or permit the hunting of hares or rabbits with a ferret or ferrets, under a penalty of ten dollars for each and every hare or rabbit caught or killed by means of a ferret or ferrets."

—List of letters remaining in the Bristol Post Office, Wednesday, Oct. 5th Mrs. Mary E Bates, Mr. M. Boileau, Miss Kate Clifton, Miss Sophia Dugan, Miss Jackson, Jessie Porter, John Phillips, Miss Jennie Scott, Walter Mayhew, Bridget Miley, Mrs. Sarah Margarum, Mrs Albert Smith, Mrs. Thos. Williams, Nathan Wilkins Postal, Miss Annie Reeder.

—The new building for Fire Company No. 2 has been begun.

A Talented Lady's Views

Mrs. C. F. Fleming, State Lecturer of Missouri, and also an artist of rare merit, whose picture of Adelaide Neilson is pronounced by the press to be the most beautiful portrait in the United States, in a recent letter said "I have been troubled with kidney disease since my childhood, and it finally culminated in chronic catarrh of the bladder It would be impossible for me to describe how much I have suffered, and I had abandoned all hope of ever being cured. I was, however, recommended to try Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure, and it has done me more good than the combined skill of all the physicians I have ever tried during my entire life." Such testimony is beyond question, and proves the value to all ladies of the remedy it advocates.

Health & Beauty.

Read and you will not regret.

The renowned beauty, Ninon de l'Enclos, astonished the world by retaining the wonderful clearness and brilliancy of mind and complexion throughout her life. At the age of 95 her skin was as soft, blooming and fresh, as a girl of 16. (The secret was the discovery of the famous sage and chemist, l'Abbe d'Effiat.) At her demise she bequeathed this most valuable secret to a physician, who supplied it to the court celebrities only. At the downfall of the empire it came in possession of a celebrated American physician, who has been eminently successful in the treatment of Blood and Skin diseases, and that the public generally may enjoy the benefits of this marvelous preparation, the Doctor has placed the recipe with the Bell Mann Co. of New York, who are prepared to supply the demands of the thousands of eager applicants. It speedily eradicates all manner of BLOOD POISONING such as Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Eczema, Pimples, Moth Patches, Freckles, Black Heads, Rough Skin, Catarrh, Liver Complaint, Inflamed Eyes, &c., &c. It is an absolute antidote for MALARIA, and restores free circulation throughout the system. It is called

TALKING BIRDS.

A THEORY THAT THEY MEAN WHAT THEY SAY.

Parrots, starlings and jackdaws are not the only birds that "talk." Birds not possessed of active power of melody are usually gifted with varied abilities of articulation. A hooded crow, for instance, can produce an astonishing variety of complex noises from his throat, and his talents only lack cultivation to enable him to give utterance to words; but his natural language is the very reverse of melodious, and cannot, in any sense, be considered a song. I have known a hooded crow to say "papa" with great correctness, and what is more remarkable, he invariably applied the name to its proper owner—not the hoodie's papa, but his master's. The starling talks very roughly indeed to his fellows, but he is one of the best mimics we have, imitating the notes of other birds, and even the human voice, with great accuracy. Magpies also can be taught to articulate with a tolerable degree of accuracy. The mocking bird, too, so well known in some parts of the United States, has no natural melody of his own, but he contrives to copy in a most faithful manner of the songs of nearly all his feathered neighbors Curiously enough, the only case I have known of talking canaries occured in the west of England, but I am not able to draw any conclusion of value from that circumstances. It may be a coincidence, or there may possible be certain families settled in the west country whose peculiar gift is to imitate with a fair amount of accuracy the various intonations of the human voice. A canary which was owned by a lady in Weston super-Mare was accustomed to hear its mistress, an invalid, say, on conclusion of its song "Oh, beauty' beauty' Sing that over again'" These words the bird picked up, and was soon able to repeat, but its education made no further progress, and no additional words were acquired. The short sentence was never uttered save after a brilliant burst of song. It is wholly incorrect to suppose that no meaning is ever attached by talking birds to such words or short sentences as they may be able to pronounce. The well-known case of the Edinburgh parrot whose singular accomplishments have already been noticed in more than one periodical, has settled the question once and forever. So far was this clever bird above "mere parrot talk" that he rarely spoke a word which had not direct relation to surrounding objects or events A strange dog introduced into the room was greeted with loud cries of "Put him out' Put him out' I'm so frighted'" Clergymen attending his numerous levees were politely requested to "Gie oot the Psalm!" and, as this by itself would savor somewhat of habitual irreverence on Poll's part, it is only fair to add that he was very particular at meal times in telling the assembled family to "Say grace first'"

THE EASTERN SENTIMENT TOWARD THE MORMONS.

While this system is spreading and being daily strengthened, while something is going on in Utah which, if left exclusively to itself, would, in a generation, bring women to the auction block, and utterly brutalize men, the people of the East do not seem to be greatly worried. Though the Gentiles of Utah never wronged the Mormons, though they have given to Utah its prosperity and accumulated wealth, though they own quite two-fifths of the property of the Territory, and though they have never asked anything of the Mormons except that they obey the laws, still, the sentiment of the East is that they are a predatory set, and that the Mormons are entitled to peculiar and tender consideration, because they, when their presence and customs had become intolerable to the people among whom they dwelt, started out into the wilderness and established a thriving Territory.

While doing this the Mormons have shrunk from no crime, recoiled at no falsehood, have murdered and robbed Americans in secret, and laid the crime to savages, and still, while despoiling Americans, have shed crocodile tears over their own extreme sufferings. They have disobeyed and derided the laws, and still continue to do so they have insulted and driven away United States officials for no offence except that of trying to do their duty under their oaths, and all this has been performed by the orders of less than thirty men, who, in the meantime, have absorbed so much of the earnings of the people that they possess more money and property than five times twenty thousand of their dupes possess. Worse than all, they have again forged the chains of an ignominious slavery on the wrists of women; what they call their religion offers a perpetual premium for men's lusts, their teachings kill the germ of chastity in the hearts of childhood before it is ever warmed into life, and destroy the honor and sacredness of home.

The men of the East should consider these things, and should remember that once before there was an institution in this country around which there was a shield of sympathy; its divine rights were declared from a thousand pulpits, Congress was too sordid and too cowardly to deal with it, wholesale merchants and great corporations lent their influence to perpetuate it, and a venal press rang with anathemas against any who dared to denounce it. But there came a day at last when men had to choose which should live and rule, that institution or this nation.

The history of what followed is fresh in all minds, and little as the masses believe it now, there will come a time, if this monster in Utah is left to grow, when there will be another call for volunteers and for money; and, as before, tens of thousands of brave young men will go away, never to return; as before, there will be an enormous debt incurred, as before, the country will be hillocked with graves, and the whole land will be moistened by the rain of women's tears.—C. C. GOODWIN, in Harper's Magazine for October.

WORDS OF WISDOM.—What loneliness is more lonely than distrust?

Nothing dies so hard and rallies so often as intolerance.

Good manners and good morals are sworn friends and firm allies.

We should believe only in works, words are sold for nothing everywhere.

As the rays of forbearance dispel the mists of enmity, so do they ripen the impulses of affection.

He who easily forgets benefits done toward him is probably possessed of a shallow brain as well as a callous heart.

The chief properties of wisdom are, to be mindful of things past, careful of things present, provident of things to come.

What the rudder is to the ship, conscience is to the character; as the one is valueless without skill, so is the other without truth.

[Chicago Tribune.]

Thomas O. Thompson, Esq., the Mayor's Secretary, who, some few days ago, slipped on a banana peel and sprained his knee, writes that St. Jacobs Oil "acted like a charm."

A FEW "HOWS."

How much happier life might be if minds could be trained to forget past troubles.

How hard it is to avoid listening and liking to listen to a scandal about our neighbor.

How tame life would be without troubles and difficulties to overcome.

How few value or cultivate a good pair of legs and lungs.

How the old are forgotten by the young.

How unfortunate that so many of the aged should make themselves unattractive and even repulsive to the young.

How strong we feel when we have never been sick.

How many men and women are there with a weak spot somewhere?

How whiskey does bring out a man's true nature and show the made-up and artificial side of moral character.

How much better is a "dog's life" than the lives of some men and women?

How few new brooms, after all, sweep clean unless there is a clean sweeper behind them.

How sorry some people are for faults which they will commit again next month.

How awfully awful it would be if everybody without warning told the truth.

How we do love to shut our eyes to what we fear may be a reality.

How much good we could do were we only rich.

How little good we do when we are rich

How contrary and eccentric seems one who thinks for him or herself

How very large the book in which might be written all we don't know.

How very small the book in which might be written all we do know.

How few barbers can shave a man without trying on him their conversational powers.

How much more we do know at twenty than at forty.

How useless it is to argue with a woman when she is angry.

Or a man.

How little credit is given children for what they see, hear and understand.

How much dignity a cigar does put in some men's mouths and bearing.

How charming and beautiful are the green fields and groves—in books

How hot are the green fields and how the mosquitoes do bite in the groves—out of books.

How difficult it is to tell whose boiler will blow up next.

How sad to think it will be somebody's boiler.

How we do go on nursing our hidden pet sin until it finds us out and blows us up.

PRACTICAL DEMONSTRATION OF THE CATECHISM.—Not long ago a bright little girl in the Sunday-school of St. Luke, M——n, New Jersey, who was in the Calvary Catechism class, taught by Miss S——, and evidently had reached the bottom facts of the lesson—the creation of man out of the dust of the earth—came running home to her mother, overfull of confidence in the Scripture theory and her own reflective conclusions, and exclaimed

"Oh, mother, I know it is all true what the catechism said about Adam's being made out of the earth—I know it is!"

"Why?"

"Because I saw Aunt Emma whip Gracie, and I saw the dust fly out of her I know it is so."

Little Gracie had been playing with ashes.

MISUNDERSTOOD.—A New Orleans Sunday School Superintendent, wishing to show off his scholars to some visiting strangers, said

Gentlemen, I'll show you how well my little flock understands that prayer is necessary as a means to obtain forgiveness for the sins they commit and, calling Johnny Tadsbury, he inquired

Johnny, my son, when you do something that you know is very wrong, what do you do?

I dodge dad, was the reply.

But I didn't mean that, my son, said the Superintendent. What I want to ask is this: How does a little boy ask God to forgive him for all the sins he commits?

I don't know, replied Johnny, nervously.

Why, certainly, you do, my son, continued the Superintendent, realizing that the examination was not going to pan out well. What do you say just before you go to bed?

I say that I'm hungry, but ma'am she won't give me nothin' cause of the cramps.

Johnny, you can go to your seat, said the Superintendent, as he wiped the cold perspiration from his brow, and told the visitors we would let them hear how well the scholars could sing.

The Sunday Magazine for November, just received, affords a rare literary and artistic treat; the articles possess great merit. The opening article, entitled, "Some American Theological Seminaries," by James L. Bowdoin, LL D., is exceedingly interesting, and is the first publication of the kind that we have met with. "Life in Brittany," "The Catacombs of Rome," "Martha's Vineyard," "Philip Doddridge, D. D.," are a few of the noteworthy contributions. Mrs. Denison has a most interesting story, "As from the Dead," and the second installment of "May Cunningham's Trial" will not fail to command particular attention. The Rev. Dr. Deems continues the admirable essays entitled, "Only." "The Home Pulpit" has a sermon by the Rev. Calvin Lincoln, and the poems are unusually meritorious. There are sketches, with portraits of Rev. Geo. Osborn, D.D., and Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, D.D., who, it is announced, assumes editorial charge of The Sunday Magazine with the December number. His fine literary taste and great popularity will not fail to increase the already large circulation of this favorite periodical. It will continue to be sold at $3 per annum, or 25 cents a number, postpaid. Address Frank Leslie, Publisher, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, New York.

LADY BEAUTIFIERS.—Ladies, you cannot make fair skin, rosy cheeks and sparkling eyes with all the cosmetics of France, or beautifiers of the world, while in poor health, and nothing will give you such rich blood, good health, strength and beauty as Hop Bitters. A trial is certain proof.

☞ Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure.

☞ Ladies, and all who lead sedentary lives, should use Dr. Mettaur's Headache and Dyspepsia Pills. Price 25 cents. For sale at all Drug Stores.

☞ It is impossible for a woman after a faithful course of treatment with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, to continue to suffer with a weakness of the uterus. Enclose a stamp to Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, 223 Western Avenue, Lynn, Mass., for her pamphlets.

☞ Try a bottle of the XLCR Chill Remedy—50 cents—at Boileau's Dorrance St. Pharmacy.

A Good Foundation.

One of the greatest troubles of our people is weakness of the stomach. As this soon causes Indigestion, Nervousness and Rheumatism, they prevail in almost every American household. There is positively no need for anybody to suffer from these painful troubles who can buy a 50 cent bottle of Parker's Ginger Tonic, for this superior medicine always tones up the stomach and nervous system, and keeps the kidneys active in carrying off the foul matters, thus laying a good foundation for perfect health.—N. O. Picayune.

☞ Having been afflicted with Hay Fever for years I gave Ely's Cream Balm a trial, was much benefitted if not permanently cured. I have had no real attacks since using it. E. H. Paugh, Editor Carbon County Democrat, Mauch Chunk, Pa. Price 50 cents.

☞ Headache, Dyspepsia, Biliousness, and Constipation cured at once by Dr. Mettaur's Headache and Dyspepsia Pills. Price 25 cents.

The leading Scientists of to-day agree that most diseases are caused by disordered Kidneys or Liver. If, therefore, the Kidneys and Liver are kept in perfect order, perfect health will be the result. This truth has only been known a short time and for years people suffered great agony without being able to find relief. The discovery of Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver Cure marks a new era in the treatment of these troubles. Made from a simple tropical leaf of rare value it contains just the elements necessary to nourish and invigorate both of these great organs, and safely restore and keep them in order. It is a POSITIVE Remedy for all the diseases that causes pains in the lower part of the body—for Torpid Liver—Headaches—Jaundice—Dizziness—Gravel—Fever—Ague—Malarial Fever, and all difficulties of the Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs.

It is an excellent and safe remedy for females during Pregnancy. It will control Menstruation and is invaluable for Leucorrhœa or Falling of the Womb.

As a Blood Purifier it is unequaled, for it cures the organs that MAKE blood.

This Remedy, which has done such wonders, is put up in the LARGEST SIZED BOTTLE of any medicine upon the market, and is sold by Druggists and all dealers at $1.25 per bottle. For Diabetes, enquire for WARNER'S SAFE DIABETES CURE. It is a POSITIVE Remedy.

WE have doubled the size of our establishment since last spring, and are constantly adding new attractions. We have a greater variety of plants in larger lots than we have ever had, our collection of ROSES is unsurpassed, and we respectfully invite lovers of roses to examine our stock before ordering any through the mail. Roses planted directly out of pots possess every advantage over roses received through the mail, or express. The same can be said of all other plants. We have 12,000 roses in about 100 varieties, and sell six of one kind and eight of another for ONE DOLLAR. These bushes are now in bud and we guarantee them to give the same satisfaction our plants always have. In addition to this large stock of roses our establishment is well stocked with every thing that pertains to any first-class floral establishment. Those who wait until June to give their orders will fail to get some of the best varieties of roses. No one should fail to give us a call between now and Easter. We will take orders for trees, evergreens, etc., for yards and lawns until April 1st. Plants for the vegetable garden, strawberry plants, grapevines, lawn grass seed, etc. etc. A very fine display of cinerarias, estelbia japonica, carnation pinks, etc. DEWITT'S GREEN HOUSES, Pond street, between Walnut and Penn
